The lights and shadows, and capcially some of the latter, of clerical file, are well brought out.

A lifelike acte of trails and hardships of the Carriotan minister is presented in this volume. It draws its portraits with a broad pound, but tells much truth, which ought to be studied. The venerable rector has a kind of Vicar of Wakefield simplicity, and the way is which strifes are set up, and the measures self-sheens takes to gratify itself with impensity, are most visually illustrated.
